

Winners of the New York City Bar Association's second annual Diversity Champion Awards were honored last night during a dinner at city bar headquarters on West 44th Street.

Recognized were Manhattan Supreme Court Justice John E.H. Stackhouse; Sharon Y. Bowen, a partner at Latham & Watkins; Zakiyyah T. Salim, an associate at Heller Ehrman; and Laurie R. Robinson, assistant general counsel at CBS Broadcasting, Inc., who is also founder and CEO of Corporate Counsel Women of Color.

The award was established to honor individuals who embody the New York bar group's diversity principles by working within their organizations to initiate and sustain change in the legal community.

New York Lawyer

June 8, 2007

By Thomas Adcock

New York Law Journal