10 YEARS OF FOSTERING DIVERSITY IN THE LEGAL PROFESSION

We did it! This year marks 10 years of consistent and repeated success! Corporate Counsel Women of Color (CCWC) has managed rapid growth, expansion, and the empowerment of diverse attorneys of color in the legal profession. Year after year after year, without fail, CCWC has kept diversity and inclusion top of mind.

This October 8-10, 2014 at the Beverly Hilton Hotel, we will have much to celebrate.

- Our 10th Annual Conference is sold out! We expect record-breaking attendance this year.
- We have the highest number of sponsors in our decade history.
- Our popular and impactful organization continues to grow. Last month, we exceeded over 3,200 members around the United States and abroad.
- Our 10th Annual Conference has over 70 conference presenters, who, despite their busy and hectic schedules, have made time to commit to make CCWC a priority and to share their wisdom and knowledge with others.

As I look back to the early days, we have accomplished so much together (see the centerfold CCWC 10-Year Time Line). In 2004, when I was creating a directory of names of in-house women of color attorneys in my living room with my printer, laptop, and internet connection, I never imagined that a small seed would bloom and flourish into the robust global organization that it is today.

I did not do any of this alone. God blessed me and I thank Him for the visions, innovation, strength, encouragement, and the increase. I thank my mom, husband, and family for all of their support. I thank my company, CBS Corporation, and the leadership team at CBS for their steadfast support of me.

I am bursting with pride when I think of the success of our members, commitment of our faithful sponsors, and the dedicated individuals who continuously—for 10 years now—keep committing to diversity. Not just one time. Not just to be seen or to do what is politically correct or to have a talking point at a meeting.

They do it over and over again because they are genuinely committed. Yes, they have skin in the game and I am grateful for their steadfastness.

As you will see in October, what started as an 8.5 x 11 directory of a list of names of in-house women of color and which was simply held together with a spiral binder, has come to life, multiplied, and morphed into an organization to empower diverse attorneys on all levels—corporate counsel, law firm associates, law firm partners, law students, and high school and college students considering a career in the law.

This year, we have an awesome lineup. Our General Counsel Training Boot Camp and MBA In-a-Day will commence on Wednesday, October 8, 2014 followed by our kick-off reception at Circa 55 at the Beverly Hilton Hotel and excursion at L.A. Live.

During the time of October 8-10, 2014, attendees will learn about best practices on a range of topics from How to Develop a Crisis Management and Business Continuity Plan to How to Manage a Data Security Breach. In addition, they will be inspired hearing about the journey and triumph of luminaries including Wendy Shiba (Retired General Counsel of KB Home and Diamond Award Honoree), David Drummond (Chief Legal Officer, Google), Nina Vaca (Board of Directors, Kohl's), and The Honorable Ann C. Williams (U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit), just to name a few. We will also have a special video tribute to the late Professor Derrick A. Bell, who spoke at our very first annual career strategies conference (see Derrick A. Bell Tribute page). Finally, we have several pre-activities and post-activities planned including a My Life As a Lawyer visit to Los Angeles Schools and Community Day at the Los Angeles Food Bank.

Please review the pre-conference magazine and schedule at-a-glance for details on all of our conference seminars and activities. I look forward to seeing you in Beverly Hills, California, as we kick off our 10th Annual Career Strategies Conference and pre-conference reception at Circa 55 at the Beverly Hilton Hotel. See you in October!

Laurie

IN MEMORIAM

PROFESSOR DERRICK A. BELL

“EVERYONE TALKS ABOUT JUSTICE,
BUT IT IS THOSE WHO HAVE KNOWN IT THE LEAST
WHO BELIEVE IN IT THE MOST.”

THE EARLY YEARS: THE MAKING OF THE INTELLECTUAL AND ACTIVIST

Derrick Bell was born on November 6, 1930 in Pittsburgh, the eldest of four children. At an early age, Derrick's parents, Ada Elizabeth Childress Bell, a homemaker, and Derrick A. Bell, Sr., a millworker and department store porter, instilled in him a serious work ethic and the drive to confront authority. Derrick was the first person in his family to go to college. He attended Duquesne University, where he earned an undergraduate degree and served in the school ROTC. He then served as a lieutenant in the United States Air Force, where he was stationed in Korea and Louisiana.

After his military service, Derrick entered law school at the University of Pittsburgh School of Law, where he was the only black student in his class of 140. Upon graduation in 1957, Derrick joined the Civil Rights Division at the Department of Justice. His tenure there proved short because his superiors expressed concern over his two-dollar membership in the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP). In 1959, after repeated requests that Derrick relinquish his NAACP membership, Derrick instead resigned his position.

Returning to Pittsburgh, Derrick took a job with the local chapter of the NAACP. While there in 1960, he married Jewel Hairston, who was also a civil rights activist and educator. They were married until Jewel's death in 1990. Jewel and Derrick had three sons: Derrick III, Douglass Dubois, and Carter Robeson.

While working in Pittsburgh, Derrick met Thurgood Marshall, who was then the head of the NAACP's legal arm, the NAACP Legal Defense Fund (LDF). Marshall knew of Derrick's resignation and was impressed by him, so he asked Derrick to join his staff. Derrick accepted on the spot. From 1960-1966, he worked to dismantle the vestiges of Jim Crow and school segregation in the south alongside Thurgood Marshall and future federal court judges Robert L. Carter and Constance Baker Motley. Derrick supervised more than 300 school desegregation cases in the South and helped to spearhead the fight to win James Meredith's admission to the University of Mississippi.

THE PROTEST YEARS: HARVARD AND OREGON

In 1969, Derrick joined the faculty of Harvard Law School; in 1971, he became the first black tenured professor on the faculty of the law school. In 1973, Derrick published the casebook that would help define the focus of his scholarship for the next 38 years: Race, Racism and American Law. In 1980, Derrick became the Dean of the University of Oregon School of Law, becoming one of the first African-Americans to serve as dean. That same year, he published a seminal work, Brown v. Board of Education, and the Interest Convergence Dilemma, 93 Harv. L. Rev. 518 (1980), in which he argued that white Americans would only support racial and social justice to the extent that it benefits them.

In 1986, Derrick resigned his position as Dean of the University of Oregon School of Law in protest of the faculty's refusal to hire an Asian-American female professor. He returned that same year to Harvard. Soon after Derrick's return to Harvard Law School, he staged a five-day sit-in in his office to protest the law school's failure to grant tenure to two female professors of color. With student support, Derrick launched a protest movement at Harvard Law School that received national attention.

Derrick saw the parallels between his work as a civil rights lawyer and a leader for the students' demand for increased diversity on the law school faculty. In 1990, after years of activism around the hiring and promotion of female professors of color, he took an unpaid leave of absence in protest from Harvard Law School. He would never return. After refusing to end his two-year protest leave, Harvard University dismissed Derrick from his position as Weld Professor of Law.

During this tumultuous time, Derrick met Janet Dewart. As the communications director of the National Urban League, Janet called Derrick for permission to publish one of his fictional stories. This conversation was the spark of a new relationship, and they were married in June 1992.

THE NYU YEARS: A TIME OF PROLIFIC WRITING AND TEACHING

In 1991, Derrick was invited to join the faculty of New York University School of Law as a visiting professor by John Sexton, his former student at Harvard and then Dean of the law school at NYU.

Derrick loved teaching and was a beloved and popular professor and advisor at NYU Law for twenty years until his passing. He taught his introductory and advanced constitutional law courses in a non-traditional and non-Socratic style that Derrick called "participatory learning." This pedagogy builds on the important work of Paulo Freire, and features each student as an active participant in learning. Derrick's students were empowered, through their participation in a series of mock judicial cases, to teach themselves and one another the law.

During his long academic career, Derrick wrote prolifically, integrating legal scholarship with parables, allegories, and personal reflections that illuminated some of America's most profound inequalities, particularly around the pervasive racism permeating and characterizing much of American law and society. Derrick is often credited as a founder of Critical Race Theory, a school of thought and scholarship that critically engages questions of race and racism in the law, investigating how even those legal institutions purporting to remedy racism can more profoundly entrench it.

After a valiant battle with cancer, Derrick died on October 5, 2011. In Derrick was an incredibly spiritual man with a deep appreciation for gospel music. As such, it is only fitting that a biblical verse sums up the extraordinary life of Derrick Bell: "Well done, my good and faithful servant." Matthew 25:23

ESSAY CONTEST WINNER

Make a concoction, savory or sweet | Illustrate the proportion of lawyers we meet | Take ten cups of crystals from a cane or the earth | Add a pinch of licorice or pepper to illuminate the dearth | The spice of the blend is underrepresented | Evidence that an issue has yet to be circumvented | No case is stronger than the legal profession | Survey the crowd while a conference is in session | What is diversity? Culture? Gender? Race? | All cannot hide behind the features of one's face | What must we sacrifice just to fit in? | Close our eyes, plug our ears, and simply pretend? | We are the same, just a variety of flavors | Our tone and our essence should always be savored | With power in our stride, that's just how we roll | Wisdom on our lips, and truth in our soul | We climb the corporate ladder to make it to the crest | Are we cognizant of the struggle, or do we forget the rest? | Some children are unaware of future possibilities | The law is only relevant when there is hostility | We are articulate; somehow that's a surprise | Bachelors, juris doctorates; our credentials, they comprise | We are professional and some people may not understand | Must we offer an explanation? Or will they simply take our hand? | How do we eat an elephant? One bite at a time | While we seek equality, we become sublime | United we stand to change the default | Let us embrace the journey to balance the pepper in the salt
